A Brave and Startling Truth by Maya Angelou

The second annual Universe in Verse — a charitable celebration of science through poetry, and a voice of resistance against the assault on nature — opened with the poem “A Brave and Startling Truth” by Maya Angelou (April 4, 1928–May 28, 2014), which flew to space on the Orion spacecraft and which Angelou dedicated to “the hope for peace, which lies, sometimes hidden, in every heart.” I chose this poem to set the tone for the show in part because it is absolutely stunning and ...

A Brave and Startling Truth - Wikipedia

"A Brave and Startling Truth" was a poem written in 1995 before a lot of horrible things happened, and after a lot. I think that Maya Angelou knew what she was talking about. Maybe I just like to think she did because she's one of my favorite poets, or maybe because millions agree she's a literary genius, but she leaves me with a question.

A Brave And Startling Truth. We, this people, on a small and lonely planet
Traveling through casual space
Past aloof stars, across the way of indifferent suns
To a destination where all signs tell us
It is possible and imperative that we learn
A brave and startling truth
And when we come to it
To the day of peacemaking
When we release our fingers
From fists of hostility
And allow the pure air to cool our palms
When we come to it
When the curtain falls on the minstrel show of hate
And faces ...

A Brave and Startling Truth. " A Brave and Startling Truth " is a poem by Maya Angelou. Critic Richard Long called it her "second 'public' poem". Angelou delivered it in June 1995, at the 50th anniversary commemoration of the United Nations, two years after she read " On the Pulse of Morning " at the inauguration of President Bill Clinton, which made her the first poet to make an inaugural recitation since Robert Frost at John F. Kennedy 's inauguration in 1961.
