Marc Hudson, in 'Beowulf': A Translation and Commentary, rejects any attempt at objectivity. In his introduction, he stresses the subjective and provisional nature of translating. He accounts for his own response to the poem by the link he finds between the Beowulf-poet's awareness of earthly mortality and our age's sense of the imminence of a nuclear holocaust.

A prose translation of Beowulf by J.R.R. Tolkien was completed by 1926, when he was 34, and at the time he was elected to the professorship of Anglo-Saxon at Oxford. The text was 'completed', in the sense that it ran from the beginning to the end of the poem, but cannot be called 'finished', for he returned to it in later years for hasty corrections where his view of the interpretation of Old English words or passages, or the suitability of his modern words, had changed.
