The Gagging of God: Christianity... book by D.A. Carson

Introduction. Don Carson's The Gagging of God is an award-winning book that is coming up on its twentieth-anniversary of publication. It challenges postmodernism and pluralism, explaining them, learning from them, and critiquing them. Carson presents a biblical theology—outlining the Bible's plot-line—and argues that the Christian metanarrative cannot be reduced to one religious option amongst many.

Don (D. A.) Carson (b. 1946) - Reformed evangelical at Trinity Evangelical Divinity School. His theology is similar to that of Wayne Grudem except on charismatic issues, where his view may be described as "open but cautious." Carson's tendency is to strive for balance and amicability in disputes but is uncompromising on the essentials of the faith.

Carson writes "If postmodern thought has tried to gag God, unsuccessfully, by its radical hermeneutics and its innovative epistemology, the church is in danger of gagging God in quite another way." (Carson, 488) Comparing the evangelical church to the Laodicean church both are seen as gagging "the exalted Jesus". Carson defines pluralism three different ways.
