When Jeanette sees Melanie after their relationship has ended, Melanie offers her an orange but Jeanette refuses to take it. Her refusal represents her refusal to succumb to the ideas of the status quo as has Melanie. Jeanette wants to remain true to her own principles and decides to head out into the world, but refuses to ever sell oranges. Throughout the entire book, Jeanette's mother believes that oranges are the only fruit, but Jeanette can see that there are others.

about how I came to write Oranges, I can do one of two things; invent a plausible back story, or try and tell some truth about the process of making. One of the things I have noticed over the last twenty years is that the later books explain something about the earlier books: In The PowerBook , (2000), I wrote, 'I can change the story.
